Judy Stahl, Candidate for AZ House LD 1, Submits Qualifying Signatures to Secretary of State

After collecting 1462 of voter signatures, Judy Stahl has qualified to be on the ballot in the 2020 race for LD1. Stahl, who started her bid for office last spring, said, "I've met with residents and community leaders on both sides of the aisle and will continue connecting with as many people as possible to best represent all of LD1. I'm very excited to move into this next phase of the campaign and am grateful for the strong support I've received throughout the district."

Stahl's top legislative goals are affordable health care, a strong economy invested in green energy and technology, and fully-funded public education, which she considers necessary to develop flourishing, future-directed communities. "Businesses need an educated workforce and a thriving population with purchasing power to succeed, and residents rely on top-notch health care and great schools to raise their families and keep the cycle of prosperity going," said Stahl. "This is why these issues are so important and why I will focus on them as a candidate and work tirelessly to achieve them as your State Representative for LD1."

While this is her first run for public office, Stahl has hands-on knowledge of the legislative process after successfully leading the seven-year campaign to create the Arizona State Board of Massage Therapy. About her past advocacy, Stahl said, "Working cooperatively with Republicans and Democrats has given me an understanding of what happens at the State House and has prepared me to jump right in and get to work on day one of my term of office. We need bridge building, consensus, and action in the State Capitol, and that's what I will bring to the Arizona House. I know how to get things done."

A Prescott resident since 1992, Stahl is a business owner, educator, mother, and engaged citizen. She owns the Prescott Center for Massage Therapy, is a national educator of massage therapists, and a thought leader on wellness and health. She is a former Chair of the Arizona State Board of Massage Therapy and former National President of the American Massage Therapy Association. Stahl earned her Master's Degree in Counseling Psychology at Prescott College and offers life coaching and counseling by phone and in an online format.
